

Abstract

Dr Lesley Jones
Senior Lecturer in Social Science
Hull York Medical School, University of York, YO10 5DD
lesley.jones@hyms.ac.uk

Ethnicity ,faith, culture and language all have an impact on how deafness is perceived by those who are deaf ,their families as well as service providers. This paper looks at the complex nature of identity and the way in which it is interpreted within deafness and the contested term "ethnicity " . How can understanding these issues help with the provision of accessible and appropriate services ?..